

Supplement of

No difference in failure between static, articulating, and prosthetic low-friction spacers for periprosthetic joint infection of total knee arthroplasty

Michael F. Shannon et al.

Correspondence to: Kenneth L. Urish (ken.urish@pitt.edu)

The copyright of individual parts of the supplement might differ from the article licence.

Supplementary Material

Table S1: Types of Articulating Cement and Prosthetic Low-Friction Spacers

Spacer Type	Brand and Manufacturer
Articulating Cement Spacer	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Simplex® HV, Stryker (Kalamazoo, Michigan, USA) • SpinePlex®, Stryker (Kalamazoo, Michigan, USA) • Triathlon®, Stryker (Kalamazoo, Michigan, USA) • P.F.C. SIGMA®, Depuy Synthes (Raynham, Massachusetts, USA) • StageOne™, Zimmer Biomet (Warsaw, Indiana, USA) • REMEDY®, Osteoremedies (Memphis, Tennessee, USA). • InterSpace®, Exactech (Gainesville, Florida, USA) • Refobacin®, Zimmer Biomet (Warsaw, Indiana, USA) • Cobalt® MVG, Enovis (Wilmington, Delaware, USA). • SMARTSET™, Depuy Synthes (Raynham, Massachusetts, USA)
Prosthetic Low-Friction Spacer	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • P.F.C. SIGMA®, Depuy Synthes (Raynham, Massachusetts, USA) • Triathlon®, Stryker (Kalamazoo, Michigan, USA) • Vivacit-E®, Zimmer Biomet (Warsaw, Indiana, USA) • GENESIS II, Smith & Nephew (London, UK). • LEGION, Smith & Nephew (London, UK).